GSA IT Schedule 70 Program to Update Software Special Item Numbers (SINs 132-32, -33, and -34)

Submitted by IT Schedule 70 ...

Overview

The General Services Administration (GSA), Office of IT Schedule Contract Operations, is planning to update and enhance the Software Special Item Numbers (SIN) 132-32, 132-33, and 132-34. The GSA IT Schedule 70 Program continually seeks to position software offerings to achieve value, cost savings, and optimal balance between functionality, security, and management for agencies.

In response to the software community, we are updating the three Software SINs to better align our offerings with the way software is sold commercially. This update makes it easier for our customers to get what they need, including the ability to better transfer software licenses between federal entities.

The three updated/revised Software SINs will provide customers new and innovative solutions by:

- Adding language within Term Software SIN (132-32) to define Term Software Licenses and differentiate between Term Software and Software as a Service (SaaS) included in the Cloud SIN (132-40)
- Optional Software Identification Tags and Transferability Rights under SIN 132-33 Perpetual Software Licenses
- Renaming SIN 132-34 from Software Maintenance as a Service to Software Maintenance Services
- Utilization Limitations Under SINs 132-32, 132-33, 132-34 clarifying rights and ownership of derivative works
- Defining Commercial Supplier Agreements (CSAs) to include Enterprise User License Agreements (EULAs), Terms of Service Agreements (TOSs) and other licensing agreements.
